PROBLEMS IN INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

by ANDREW GYORGY and HUBERT S. GIBBS, both of Boston University

This new text is the first systematic application of the problem method to the field of International Relations. It presents twenty-five carefully selected cases which offer the student an unusual opportunity to analyze concrete situations and apply certain general principles of International Politics. Two-thirds of the problems were written specifically for this book and present new materials; the remaining cases were carefully selected and edited from leading publications. Ten well known authorities in the field of International Relations contributed new cases which are published here for the first time. All cases were carefully selected to provide geographic balance throughout the book. Among the twenty-five problems there is adequate coverage for Western Europe, Eastern Europe, the Middle East, Southeast Asia, the Far East, and Latin America.

Teaching aids include 20 new maps and detailed bibliographies.

352 pages . 6" x 9" . To be Published February 1954

ERRATUM

In Volume 296 (November 1954) of THE ANNALS, The Future of the United Nations: Issues of Charter Revision, page 20, column 2, line 1, for the same civilization, later the con*read* aid of the victim; and that, finally, the. The sentence as corrected then reads: The first condition is that in case of unqualified aggression by a state the Security Council be unanimous in recognizing the aggression and in designating it as such, and unanimous in calling upon the Member States to come to the aid of the victim; and that, finally, the Member States have both the determination and the military capacity to coerce the aggressor and punish him.
